What Can I Do With a Major In...

Integrative Studies

http://integrativestudies.unt.edu/

Majoring in Integrative Studies

The Integrative Studies major empowers you to create a major that best suits your interests and enhances your career objectives. For example, you may prepare for a career in international business by taking foreign language, anthropology and business courses.

You can pick from a wide variety of courses offered by various departments across campus. As a result, you learn new perspectives based on a professor’s research and experiences. You will take 36 credit hours of courses selected from three academic areas. At least one area must be in the College of Arts and Sciences and the other two areas can be from the other colleges and schools across campus. You’re allowed no more than one field in a college or school other than the College of Arts and Sciences.

Internships for academic credit are available. An internship course has been designed specifically for students in this major. If you’re taking political science courses, for example, you may work for a government agency in Washington, D.C. You may write for our student newspaper or a community newspaper in the Dallas-Fort Worth region if you’re studying journalism. If you’re enrolled in science courses, you may work on a professor’s research project or your own research project in one of the university’s research centers and institutes.

General information on Careers for Integrative Studies Majors:

The Integrative studies degree’s flexibility provides opportunities to follow many different career paths. Think about the type of career you would like to pursue and pick concentrations that will provide you the knowledge and skills you will need to thrive in that field. If you are looking for possible ideas, the College of Arts and Sciences has created a document outlining possible themes including:

- Business
- Helping Professions
- Health and Wellness
- Legal Studies
- Science
- Medical Related Studies
- Public/Private Administration

As with any degree you will want to supplement your classwork with real world experience. Make yourself more marketable with Internships and part or full time jobs. Think about joining student organizations that mirror your interests. All student groups are listed at http://unt.orgsync.com/.

For more detailed information please sign up to attend an information session by calling (940)565-2051.

*Please view our other “What Can I Do With a Major In” pages to view career options in your fields of interest.