What Can I Do With a Major In…

Social Science

http://cas.unt.edu/advising/integrative-studies-and-social-science-programs/social-science

Majoring in Social Science

Are you interested in many different subjects within the social sciences? Still trying to narrow your options and decide which career path is right for you?

A Bachelor of Arts degree in Social Science from the University of North Texas offers an interdisciplinary approach to 21st century education, allowing you to tailor a degree program to your specific needs and career goals.

The Social Science program gives you the flexibility to explore anthropology, economics, geography, history, philosophy, political science, psychology, social work and sociology. You may also participate in an internship and earn academic credit while gaining valuable work experience. The Social Science major has an internship course designed specifically for students in this major.

Teacher certification at the secondary education level is available through a variation of the above Social Science major. See Social Science/Social Studies with Teacher Certification.

For more detailed information please meet with an Academic Counselor in the College of Arts and Sciences. You can set up an appointment by calling (940)565-2051, or by visiting their office in the General Academic Building (GAB) room 220.

*Please view our other “What Can I Do With a Major In” pages to view career options in your fields of interest.