UNT Offers Suicide Prevention Training

Suicide is a leading cause of death for college students. Studies show that asking someone if they are considering suicide and persuading them to live can help reduce their chances to actually attempt suicide. QPR (Question, Persuade, Refer) training will provide information about the root causes of suicide, the verbal and behavioral clues that could indicate suicidal thoughts and how to talk with someone about whether they are considering suicide.

To register for an upcoming QPR training session, call 940-565-2741 or email sean.bower@unt.edu. If you would like to request a QPR training for your department, please contact Pam Flint at Pam.Flint@unt.edu.

QPR Training Dates:

- Thursday, June 21, 2018, 2 - 3:30 p.m. in Chestnut Hall 324
- Monday, September 10, 2018, 2 - 3:30 p.m. in Chestnut Hall 324
- Monday, October 8, 2018, 2 - 3:30 p.m. in Chestnut Hall 324
- Monday, November 24, 2018, 2 - 3:30 p.m. in Chestnut Hall 324

UNT Dining Services Recognized for Innovation with New Food Service Kiosks

UNT Dining Services is once again in the news with the story “UNT embraces self-serve order kiosks” by Food Management magazine. The article highlights the success of the new University Union food service kiosks and can be viewed here.
Call for Student Spotlights

The DSA Marketing and Communications department is looking for suggestions for students to spotlight (through testimonials and profiles) in new DSA marketing materials, social media campaigns and the website.

Please send the names of students you think would be great candidates to Ray Willhoft. We will continue to spotlight students throughout the academic year.
In the Know is published by the Division of Student Affairs to keep staff informed with news, helpful tips, and points of pride.
